Why take the risk

The risks to public safety associated with locating a lithium battery storage plant such as this are endless and have been enumerated by many. There is no compelling reason to locate this facility so close to a dense population - placing so many in potentially catastrophic danger - especially when there is so much vacant land in California in more rural locations. Regardless of how many assurances and precautions are provided by the builders of the facility,.. accidents still can happen. Needless to say,..Why take the risk?
