Against Compass Energy Storage Project in San Juan Capistrano

Battery storage facilities have not been shown to be safe or reliable enough for construction in or near densely developed residential areas. There is considerable fire risk from the facility and the proposed location is in an area of San Juan already identified as "high risk" for fires. There is no mitigation plan that can adequately protect the surrounding area from toxic fumes and the long-term effects of lingering pollutants in soil and water. The San Juan City Council has unanimously voted against the construction of this facility and the majority of San Juan residents are against it. Please do not issue a permit for this facility in the proposed location for the sake of residents and children, the environment, and health and safety.
