Another encroachment

We live in a beautiful coastal area. For years we lived with the reality is San Onofre. We still do since there is nowhere to store the remaining radioactive materials. Now we are considering another storage facility that stores lithium batteries. As I understand it, these batteries are also very dangerous. While not radioactive, you cannot extinguish a fire in them. With all the insurance problems we have in this state, this is just another risk that can provide an excuse for raising rates or canceling coverage. This is insanity
