Offshore Wind

I used to think wind turbines were an interesting alternative energy. I heard it was green, renewable and sustainable. However, the more I've learned the more I realized this is a huge lie. These giant turbines wreak havoc on the environment. Especially offshore. Everything from the high decibel mapping of the ocean floor to the pile driving and then there's a toxic cables that often break, and electromagnetic fields that emanate and the constant repair and the inevitable breakdown of these things from storms, lightning or just wear and tear. All this has a devastating impact on Marine life, the fisheries as well as the economy. This industry is expensive, destructive, and does not belong here at Avila or in any ocean!
