Support for Lambie Industrial Park Site

Dear commissioners

I am writing in hopes that the CEC is considering the alternative site Lamby industrial Park for the Corby battery energy storage system (BESS) project. I urge you to consider this site for the safety of our residence. Please instruct NextEra to move this project to a much safer site Lamby industrial Park site.

The storing of Lithium Batteries have proven to experience thermal runaway, which burn and smaller days or weeks. When these events take place, no one really knows the long-term dangers that linger because qualified inspections and lingering results are still in the preliminary start up phases of causes and effects.

I don't understand why our state government has allowed BESS companies to circumvent our local government. Solano County supervisors, and the city of Vacaville passed moratorium and develop ordinances for these companies and their applications. Why do we even have local government? Our local government along with many residents worked tirelessly to provide safety for all of the residents and the state has now put our lives in jeopardy. So much time went into the developing logistical and safe ordinances for the BESS companies that are submitting applications.

NextEra's objections on minor logistical issues are not even reasonable. These are wealthy companies that can afford to make the adjustments needed to Lambie Industrial park.

County residence will be satisfied with the solution, it will make for a much straightforward process for them.

I urge you to instruct NextEra to move the Corby BESS project to Lambie Industrial Park which will be the safest location for residence of Solano County and unincorporated Vacaville.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Vacaville unincorporated resident,
Reva Correia
