Whyâ€™s it got to go there

The project is going along a main road for something the public won't have access to. It's going to create noise and light that will be unappealing and possibly unhealthy for the nearby residents. It is said to be efficient but the community is already struggling with water usage. I don't understand why this must be built in this location when Bakersfield is a few hours away, has more residents, land, and infrastructure to support the project. If they piss off the community and force its way in the owners of the facility need to be responsible for all water and electrical upgrades that will be required for the facility for the entirety of the neighboring communities including Ridgecrest for the length of time that the project exists. The project owners are taking advantage the small town living since it's cheap land. The project is scattered across the both sides of a highway and behind a gas station. None of the project makes sense to me. These facilities are also said to increase the temperature nearby them and it gets to be in the 110s in the summer time, the last thing we need is heat!
