No support for Tire Efficiency Law

As someone with extensive experience testing vehicles and balancing the tradeoffs that impact ride, handling, and consumption, I can say with certainty that the production tire is not the best tire for a vehicle, it's the middle of the road compromise tire. For the "middle of the road" driver, it will likely work well and most of those folks simply replace the production tire with an equivalent. However, many people use vehicles under circumstances where the production tires simply fall short. They can even create safety risks. At the end of the day, the government is the last entity to understand each individual's wants and needs. In addition to the practical implications, I see this law as an example of massive government overreach and gross impingement on our personal freedoms. This is the kind of law that will encourage many democrats vote for republicans.
