Are People Here Out Of Their Minds

You need to please allow the people that live in Acton where this project is proposed make the decision as to weather it can be here or not. Acton is an extreme fire hazard zone and the people that have lived here for many years and the people that have only moved here are unable to build or use their properties due to the government mandated safety requirements in place primarily for fire hazard reasons. What makes anyone possibly even consider that a project like this could ever be allowed? It is a complete slap in the face to everyone else that lives here and follows the rules unable to use their property as they wish or to build anything larger then a small house or storage unit due to the amount of water needed, and water unavailable to put out a fire here. If we are unable to build due to lack of water what makes anyone think any type of commercial building over a few thousand square feet could possibly be built in Acton?
