Commissioners re: Docket 24-OIR-03,

We have concerns with this legislation. As a small union business this will cause more costing and tracking that will be passed along to the consumers when costs have been substantially rising on materials and labor aggressively. We also hold our clients confidentiality in high regards and sharing their info is a breach of this trust. More regulation isn't what's needed. Permit compliance is important to us and should be the owners responsibility. Also in some cases permits, plans and engineering drive costs to building owners more substantially making them choose low bidding unqualified contractors to do work which results in improper installation and additional costs to owners to fix their bad installs. Please reconsider this approach as it will continue to add costs to consumers in a state that is hardly affordable to begin with. Mark Mulholland
