Subject: Approval of National Lighting Contractors Association of America as Acceptance Test Technician Provider

Dear Mr. Wong,

Our company encountered great difficulty acquiring the Acceptance Test Technician (ATT) courses needed to make our electrical work compliant with the new Title 24 codes. Thankfully, we were able to obtain the much needed ATT course through Jack Yapp's school, National Lighting Contractors Association of America (NLCAA). His school is well equipped with the latest advanced lighting control systems and he is extremely knowledgeable on the Title 24 regulations. However, his teaching means nothing unless he is certified. I am writing this letter to request that NLCAA be approved by the CEC in the next meeting on November 17th. It would represent a huge financial hardship for our company and other non-union electrical contractors if NLCAA was not approved.

Please ensure that NLCAA has an unbiased chance at becoming an ATTCP. There are many non-union electrical contractors, including myself, that are depending on it.

Best Regards,

John Robinson
