From a neighbor living down wind

For almost fifty years I have lived on the beach down wind from the plant and have never known anyone living in the area who has suffered health problems related to its nearby location. Throughout the time I've followed this discussion I have never heard, should the plant be removed, what would take its place and that concerns me. Should its replacement be commercial or residential development, that would change the dynamics of this area dramatically. Humans cannot survive without electricity, period, and the power plant, a quiet neighbor, is far more preferable than other alternatives.
