No on the Puente Power Plant

Building the Puente Power Plant when California already has a surplus of power is not only wasteful and irresponsible, but it is also morally unethical. Given that Oxnard is already in the 90th percentile for asthma in the state of California, why build it? Given that members of the Native American community have offered public comment to testify against the building, why build it? Given that Oxnard has been designated an environmental justice community-- a term for communities requiring extra protection from unnecessary toxic waste siting-- why build it? Given the threat of tsunami and erosion to the very site of the PPP, why build it? Given that the majority of highly paid jobs will be outsourced to LA County and out of state, why build it? There are certainly more questions raised than answered; more risks than pros. I urge the CEC to do what is responsible and decide against the Puente Power Plant.
