Puente Power Plant

I urge the CEC to not approve the Puente Power Project application by Southern California Edison of a contract with NRG Energy. There are significant environmental concerns as well as adding more generation capacity to an already overbuilt system. Californians are paying billions of dollars for electricity we don't need because we are already producing a surplus. By 2020 California will have 21% more than consumers require. If new capacity is to be developed, alternative and sustainable energy technologies including battery storage should be considered rather than building more polluting fossil fuel plants.

Sincerely,

Ravid Raphael
