Oppose Oxnard Power Plant

I am writing in opposition to the opposed new power plant in Oxnard. As the LA Times recently reported, we do not need more power plants in California. And in particular, we should not have plants sited near communities whose socioeconomic status makes them a dumping ground for toxic development. California's energy resources would be far better spent on renewables such as solar and wind, which can be sited in places that have less impact on human communities, and not produce the GHGs that are only adding to the dangers we face from global climate change.
