No more gas plants in California

The people of Oxnard have lived for generations in a sacrifice zone, alongside power plants, landfills and a toxic waste Superfund site. The fumes from all this heavy industry, combined with airborne pesticides, have led to some of the state's highest asthma rates in a town where one in five residents don't have health coverage. In the same Census tract as the proposed power plant and two other existing plants, the asthma rate is higher than 92% of all communities in California. We need clean air and environmental justice! No more gas plants in California. California should lead the way to 100% renewable electricity and stop charging rate payers to build new dirty gas plants.
