TERRAMAR STATUS REPORT 3- December 1, 2014

Terramar looks forward to reading the San Diego Air Pollution Control District's PDOC. Terramar has concerns about air pollution especially when all six units would be in use at the same time. Terramar reserves the right to make data requests when this information becomes available.

Terramar also has concerns about green house gases emitted from the Amended CECP especially in light of the new EPA recommendations.

Terramar looks forward to hearing from the California Coastal Commission regarding whether the Amended CECP, as well as the CECP, is coastally dependent now that there is no need for coastal water. Terramar requests the right to make data requests when this information becomes available.

Terramar looks forward to a workshop discussion that includes Alternatives as this is a new and unique project.

As John McKinsey stated October 23, 2014 in the CEC transcript:

Each proceeding has to take on its own procedural aspects, and this is a petition amendment that happens to have a committee assigned it and is conducting itself in a very thorough manner of the evaluation of the petition to amend, but it's still a separate entirely unique and new proceeding.

Terramar feels that the Applicant needs to remember that this is a "separate entirely unique and new proceeding", when Terramar and others request new visuals. Terramar still would like to have the visuals requested for this new and unique project. Old visuals do not represent a completely new project.

Respectfully submitted by,

Kerry Siekmann, Terramar
