The Regional Grid Operation and Governance workshop is intended to provide a public discussion of the foundational aspects of the Independent System Operator's corporate framework. Western states and stakeholders are invited to comment on key principles of regional grid operator governance.

Pursuant to Senate Bill 350, the Clean Energy and Pollution Reduction Act of 2015, modifications to the Independent System Operator governance structure would be needed to allow for the transformation of the ISO into a regional grid operation organization. This transformation will help promote the development of regional electricity transmission markets and improve access to those markets.

Interested parties can participate remotely through WebEx, an online meeting service. An agenda will follow.
