Purpose

The purpose of this workshop is to solicit comments from interested parties on proposed changes to the New Solar Homes Partnership (NSHP) Guidebook (Guidebook). The proposed Guidebook is available on the Energy Commission website at [\[http://www.energy.ca.gov/renewables/06-NSHP-1/documents/\]](http://www.energy.ca.gov/renewables/06-NSHP-1/documents/). Most of the proposed changes relate to affordable housing provisions, including new incentive levels. Other changes include: 1) modifications to eligibility criteria intended to be consistent with the California Public Utilities Commission's (CPUC) April 2007 California Solar Initiative Handbook, 2) clarification of Guidebook language and requirements, and 3) revisions to and the simplification of application forms.

The Renewables Committee is interested in comments pertaining to the following program elements:

- Affordable housing provisions and incentive levels
- Mixed use developments
- Guidebook language clarity
- Application form revisions

Background

At its December 13, 2006 Business Meeting, the California Energy Commission (Energy Commission) adopted the NSHP Guidebook. The Energy Commission's NSHP is part of a comprehensive statewide solar program known as the California Solar Initiative (CSI) with the CPUC. Development work on the CSI began in 2005 and is moving forward pursuant to Senate Bill 1 (Statutes of 2006, Ch. 132), which the Governor signed on August 21, 2006. The goal of the CSI is to install 3,000 megawatts (MW) of distributed solar photovoltaic (PV) electricity generation in California by the end of 2016. The Energy Commission and the CPUC are each administering separate, but coordinated elements of the CSI.

The NSHP provides financial incentives to encourage the installation of eligible solar energy systems on new residential construction. The NSHP is focusing efforts on new residential buildings to capitalize on the Energy Commission's understanding of production and custom home construction, and seeks to achieve 400 MW of distributed solar PV electricity generation by the end of 2016.

Since the Guidebook adoption in December 2006, two affordable housing advisory committee meetings have been held to propose and discuss guidebook changes that could encourage greater participation by affordable housing developments. As a result of the advisory committee meetings, and with Renewables Committee recommendations, revised affordable housing provisions have been included in the proposed NSHP Guidebook. In addition, other proposed changes to the Guidebook intend to clarify eligibility and other requirements and simplify application forms.
