*P3a. Description: (Describe resource and its major elements. Include design, materials, condition, alterations, size, setting, and boundaries)

This property was recorded in 1982 by the Riverside County Historical Community. The property was observed to include an unnamed prospecting operation in Desert Center that dates to the 1930s. Six structures were observed on the property: a cabin, shed, ore processing mill, water tank, well, and windmill.

The property was re-visited on July 10, 2013. Five of the six structures appear, while one, the windmill, no longer exists on the property. The cabin and shed show signs of decay, featuring broken windows and doors, collapsing roofs, and deteriorated or removed siding. The mill site and water tank appear unchanged from the previous visit.

*B10. Significance: Theme Residential Development  Area Desert Center
Period of Significance ca.1930  Property Type Prospecting complex  Applicable Criteria N/A
(Discuss importance in terms of historical or architectural context as defined by theme, period, and geographic scope. Also address integrity.)

The property does not appear to meet the criteria for the NRHP or CRHR based on its lack of integrity. This homestead-type property on Corn Springs Road was constructed circa 1932, and the complex is associated with early prospecting and mining in the area. Little information is known about this property, however, it was developed during a period when individuals were taking advantage of the Desert Land Act passed in 1877. Through the act, Congress encouraged and promoted the economic development of arid land such as that found in the Chuckwalla Valley. Settlers often lived in converted trailers on their newly claimed land or built their own homes from rock, wood, or concrete (Anderson 1998). As it became evident that wells could be successfully drilled for irrigation, more families were drawn to the Chuckwalla Valley and the mountains.

Although this property, as a homestead, had a general role in the development of the area, it is not known to be directly associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the history of the area and therefore does not appear to meet NRHP Criterion A or CRHR Criterion 1. The property is not known to be associated with significant persons in area history; therefore, the property does not appear to meet NRHP Criterion A or CRHR Criterion 2. The buildings do not display distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction and thus do not appear to meet NRHP Criterion C or CRHR Criterion 3. The physical condition of the property has been altered over time with additional materials and features, and the complex does not exhibit sufficient integrity to convey its historical significance. In summary, the property does not appear to meet the criteria for listing in the NRHP or CRHR.
