Subject: Quail Brush Power Plant (11-AFC-03)

We all rely on energy provided by companies, but I am against building the Quail Ridge Power Plant. I know it reflects the "not in my back yard" attitude, but preserving the open space for people and the habitat is so important, especially in an urban area like San Diego. Think of your children growing up where our precious natural habitat is erased by power plants and contractors and the like.

Power companies are in business to make money, not offer energy altruistically. Therefore I can understand them not wanting to put our natural areas on their priority list. But those areas are extremely important. There is government land right over the hill, vacant land on the edge of their "war practice" area. Please, do not take away or infringe on the beautiful and well used open space around Mission Trails.
