Thank you,

Tracey

I am a new home owner in Santee, California, just 5 miles from where you plan on putting in this new power plant. I worked hard to buy a home and am disappointed my investment is going to go to waste because the state wants to screw over the City of Santee by putting in a power plant. I am completely appalled that you would build this power plant so close to residents, schools and a national park. The fact that the research you provided does NOT include how close it will be to schools and homes is disgraceful. Not only that, but to find out this project has been in the works for months and I am just finding out about it is saddening to me. WE SHOULD AT LEAST HAVE THE RIGHT TO VOTE ON IT! We can vote for gay marriage and even smoking marijuana, but not a big, nasty, pollution mess that you want to build. California is obviously in it for the money and not for their residents. It honestly makes me want to move out of state like the rest of my family did. There are plenty of places in San Diego that don't have residents within that proximity. Try going a little further east. I was planning on living and contributing to the city of Santee for many years to come, but if this power plant comes in, I will have to take a huge loss on my condo and move to a different city and perhaps a different state since East County San Diego is the only place I could afford to buy a home.

Please, have a heart and re-look at this project and the location of it.
