Transitioning away from natural gas

I strongly support incentivizing consumers and manufacturers to speed transition from home based natural gas utility use. This would lead to use of renewable sources electric energy. To that end, my family no longer uses gas forced air heating, gas water heating, or cooking. We have yet to transition our clothes drier. Our home is only partially solar powered, with more panels and energy storage to come. Integral in this transition is the need for storage of renewable sources energy, which may require incentivizing this for utilities and CCA.
