California is leading the way

The 25 California cities that have approved Reach Codes are showing the rest of the county a simple, effective way to address our climate emergency. It makes no sense to allow natural gas in new construction - or major remodels - because those gas lines will be stranded assets as the state moves forward on its climate goals. More and more people are buying electric vehicles, so we need to be sure EV chargers are available in new buildings. Please support the local cities that are leading the effort to get fossil fuels out of our infrastructure.
