No more pollution, pleeeze!

My family have lived in close proximity to the current power station for forty years. The current plant spews black, sticky residue on our property daily. The odors that have come from this plant are so bad that my children used to refer to it as "the fart factory". I still often see black smoke coming from their exhaust towers.

The opportunity to raise a family this near the beaches of Southern California has kept me here in spite of the close proximity of industrial pollution. However, it has been at a cost. (My children's father died of lung cancer.)

To continue to zone this property as "industrial" is a travesty, since the current dense population will suffer the consequences for a very long time. Please let us breath clean ocean air by stopping this travesty now!
