Power plant releasing gas

Last ninth between 5:30 and 6:00, there was a terrible screeching sound and hiss coming from the direction of the power plant in Redondo Beach. I am at least 1 mile away and it sounded as if there was an air horn in my living room. After the noise stopped, we were overcome with the smell of gas. It was so strong that I thought our house my go up if I turned on the stove. If it was this bad near my home, I can only imagine what it was like for those living closer. This cannot be good for our air quality and surely will have a lasting impact on the environment.
