Notice of Rescheduled Commissioner Workshop on Approaches to Assessing Funding Program Benefits

The California Energy Commission (CEC) will conduct a workshop to gather information on the assessment of funding programs for clean transportation, primarily focusing on zero emission vehicles (ZEVs). This was originally scheduled as the afternoon session of the workshop held on August 19, 2020. The session was cancelled in response to unprecedented stress to the state's electricity grid due to a heat wave. The workshop is part of the CEC's 2020 Integrated Energy Policy Report Update (2020 IEPR Update) proceeding.

A quorum of commissioners may participate, but no votes will be taken.

The workshop will be held remotely, consistent with Executive Orders N-25-20 and N-29-20 and the recommendations from the California Department of Public Health to encourage physical distancing to slow the spread of COVID-19. The public is able to participate in the workshop consistent with the direction in these Executive Orders. Instructions for remote participation are provided below.

Remote Access Only

Remote access is available by both Internet or call-in options via Zoom at <https://zoom.us/>.™ For details, see the "Remote Attendance" section toward the end of this notice.

Agenda

This workshop will focus on assessment metrics for funding programs. It will consist of a panel discussion on approaches to assessing benefits of state funding programs for clean transportation.

Panelists will include individuals from CEC staff, community-based organizations, and partnering state agencies. Discussion will focus on past CEC benefits assessments, improving benefits assessments in disadvantaged communities, and approaches to assessing benefits from other state funding programs.

A detailed meeting schedule will be posted prior to the workshop at the 2020 IEPR Update Workshops, Notices, and Documents page, <https://www.energy.ca.gov/data-reports/reports/integrated-energy-policy-report/2020-integrated-energy-policy-report-update-0>.

Background

The transportation sector remains the largest contributor to greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions in the state. With the exception of the COVID-19 crisis, this sector has not seen a decline in emissions in recent years. The current COVID-19 crisis has also impacted the state's economy, employment, and public health.

Clean transportation may contribute to economic recovery, a reduction in GHG emissions, a reduction in air pollutants, and public health benefits. With the proper approach, low-income and disadvantaged communities may benefit substantially. Several state policies call attention to these issues:

- Assembly Bill 32 (Núñez, Chapter 488, Statutes of 2006) requires the California Air Resources Board (CARB) to develop a scoping plan to reduce emissions. CARB's California's 2017 Climate Change Scoping Plan emphasizes reducing GHG emissions from transportation as a primary objective.
- Assembly Bill 398 (Garcia, Chapter 135, Statutes of 2017) requires CARB to coordinate with state agencies in implementing climate goals, including transportation.
- Senate Bill 350 (De León, Chapter 547, Statutes of 2015) directs state agencies to identify barriers to transportation electrification, including barriers in disadvantaged communities. The bill also directs state agencies to include transportation electrification in their plans, regulations, guidelines, and funding programs.
- Assembly Bill 1550 (Gomez, Chapter 369, Statutes of 2016) requires the investment plan for the state's Greenhouse Gas Reduction Fund to include disadvantaged communities, low income communities, and areas nearby such communities.
- The Governor's Office 2018 ZEV Action Plan calls on the CEC to explore options for ZEV refueling (charging, hydrogen refueling) infrastructure in disadvantaged communities, including incentives, investments, and pilot programs.

Consistent with these statutes, orders, and action plans, this workshop will inform staff and the lead commissioner for the 2020 IEPR Update about the latest analysis, opportunities, and challenges for economic recovery and clean transportation. It will contribute to the development of the 2020 IEPR Update findings and policy recommendations.
