We NEED 100% clean electricity by 2030

The State should set a more ambitious goal. It's disheartening to see these hugely destructive wildfires and heat waves being normalized in our society. I moved to California because it is a leader in everything it does, including fighting against climate change. I'm originally from Maine, where climate change is not regarded as a huge issue despite the obvious eroding coastline and extreme weather.

Shaving 15 years off of SB100 is the right thing to do for our environment, for the state, and also the country as we know California is a huge influence who often sets popular precedence. Clean electricity by 2030 is a huge step in the right direction towards environmental stabilization.
