More focus on LDES

Long duration energy storage has shown significant promise in supporting a 100% clean energy future with a grid which is reliable and resilient and implementations such as microgrids in many locations. In many forecasts, energy storage and long duration energy storage (LDES) are separated, with long duration energy storage being a very small portion of the overall envisioned mix. I would comment to look to combine the categories and/or focus to significantly increase the amount of long duration energy storage that is advanced and pursued.
