Agenda

This will be a two-day workshop. On the first day, speakers will frame the scope and scale of building decarbonization in California and discuss consumer needs, community engagement, and lessons learned from past and current building decarbonization programs. In the afternoon, discussion will focus on the financing tools needed to enable the large-scale investment in California's buildings needed to meet the state's building decarbonization goals.

On the second day, speakers will discuss workforce needs associated with building decarbonization. Speakers will present data on demographics and regional availability and will describe educational and training pathways that support the high-quality jobs needed to shift California to carbon-free buildings. Speakers will also discuss just transition and how to increase building decarbonization workforce opportunities for all Californians, especially those on the front lines of climate change.

A detailed meeting schedule will be posted prior to the workshop at the CEC's 2021 IEPR webpage (<https://www.energy.ca.gov/data-reports/reports/integrated-energy-policy-report/2021-integrated-energy-policy-report/2021-iepr>).

Background

The 2019 IEPR (<https://www.energy.ca.gov/data-reports/reports/integrated-energy-policy-report/2019-integrated-energy-policy-report>) identified the building sector as a significant contributor to California's greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions. It indicated a combination of clean energy supplies, deep energy efficiency improvements in buildings and appliances, and electric demand flexibility would be required to reduce GHG emissions from California buildings. The 2019 IEPR also discussed several barriers and solutions to achieving significant GHG emission reductions from buildings.

As directed by Assembly Bill 3232 (Friedman, Chapter 373, Statutes of 2018), in May 2021, the CEC released its draft California Building Decarbonization Assessment report (<https://efiling.energy.ca.gov/GetDocument.aspx?tn=237733&DocumentContentId=70963>). This initial report analyzes scenarios to reduce GHG emissions in residential and commercial buildings by at least 40 percent by 2030, identifies strategies to reduce emission reductions, and discusses the related impacts, costs, and barriers.

Public Comment

Oral comments will be accepted at the end of each day. Comments may be limited to three minutes or less per speaker and one person per organization. Depending on the number of members of the public seeking to make a comment, the facilitator may adjust the total time allotted for public comment and the time allotted for each comment.

If participating via Zoom's online platform, use the "raise hand" feature to alert the administrator that you would like to make a comment after the lead commissioner opens the floor for public comment.

If participating by telephone, press *9 to "raise your hand" and *6 to mute/unmute. A workshop administrator will call on you by the last three digits of your phone number and you should unmute your phone before introducing yourself and sharing your comment.
