IEPR-22-02 Storage efficiency, HTML vs PDF files

IEPR-22-02 Storage efficiency, HTML vs PDF files

The use of HTML format files will enhance the CEC Docket Branch of the California Planning Library (CPL).

The below attached document is the result of the PDF conversion of a HTML format file.

The original HTML file size is 117,294 bytes, the resulting PDF conversion size is 255,639 bytes. More than doubling the file size.

PDF conversion results in the loss of "tooltips".

The tooltip, also known as infotip or hint, is a common graphical user interface (GUI) element in which, when hovering over a screen element or component, a text box displays information about that element, such as a description of a link's function. See <https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Tooltip>.

The file you have downloaded from the docket will have changed in size from the PDF file submitted. Please compare the downloaded file size to the original HTML file size of 117,294 bytes.

The docket system is capable of storing HTML format files, which uses the same text base coding as DXF files, a file format currently allowed in the docket.

Please make the filing of HTML format files in the Energy Commission docket possible. This will enhance the capability of the docket system and the CPL, while reducing the storage space required.
