One day, but not today

As a PG&E solar customer, electric vehicle driver, and former nuclear power employee, I have many different perspectives on the the decision to keep Diablo Canyon Power Plant open. I agree that there will be a time that we're able to close nuclear power plants and it will be a decrease in risk to citizens and the environment, but today is not that day. We're simply not there yet with other carbon-free power sources and until then, we should continue operating nuclear power plants with a track record of safe performance. Keep Diablo open for as long as needed!
