Climate consulting services (implementation and monitoring)

I would like to encourage the CEC to consider companies that provide climate consulting services and educational services, including companies that are nonprofit or not-for-profit. Many businesses require external assistance in implementing new technologies for decarbonization and climate adaptation, as they do not have sufficient in-house resources.

I would also like to echo Jim Hawley's comments on the importance of monitoring the impacts of climate technologies so that this program can continue to support those technologies which are most efficient and effective.
