I am a Hers Rater and I'm deeply concerned about the recent proposal by the California Energy Commission to revoke the HERS Program for Field Verification and Diagnostic Testing. This decision puts my profession and my livelihood in jeopardy. The HERS Program is critical for ensuring energy efficiency in buildings and has been an integral part of my work.

The commission's proposal is not only reckless but also shows a lack of consideration for the people who work in this field. The proposed rules under 23-HERS-01 do not seem to take into account the impact it will have on Hers Raters like me, who will lose their jobs and means of earning a living.

I implore the California Energy Commission to rethink their decision and to put adequate measures in place for the future of the HERS Program. It's essential that the commission ensures that alternative arrangements are made for the future and that Hers Raters are not left without work. Thank you for your attention to this matter.
