1.0 INTRODUCTION

WSP USA Environment & Infrastructure Inc. (WSP) was contracted by GEM A-CAES LLC (GEM), a subsidiary of Hydrostor, Inc. (Hydrostor), to conduct a Joshua tree (Yucca brevifolia) census survey and report at the site of the Willow Rock Energy Storage Center (project) located in Kern County, California. This report provides methods, results, and discussion of the survey. All figures referenced in this report are provided in Appendix A.

1.1 Project Location and Topography

The project site is located on private property located in and around the rural community of Ansel (Figure 1, Regional Map). The site is located north of State Route 138, south of State Route 58, east of Interstate 5, and west of Edwards Air Force Base (Figure 2, Vicinity Map). It includes the development of an energy storage facility (approximately 190 acres), referred to herein as the project site. The project also includes approximately 20 miles (300 acres) of electrical transmission lines connecting to the existing Southern California Edison Whirlwind Substation located to the southwest. The electrical transmission line includes a 125-foot-wide corridor. The total area, including the energy storage facility, transmission lines, and their corridor, is approximately 490 acres and collectively referred to as the "action area."

The primary project site is located on the 7.5-minute Soledad Mountain, California, U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) topographic quadrangle (topo quad). The transmission line route and variances are on the Soledad Mountain, Rosamond, Fairmont Butte, and Little Buttes topo quads (Figure 3, USGS Topographic Map). The action area is within portions of Sections 31, 32, and 33 of Township 10 North and Range 12 West; portions of Sections 36 of Township 10 North and Range 13 West; portions of Sections 1, 2, 11, 14, 15, 16, 17, and 18 of Township 9 North and Range 13 West; portions of Sections 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, and 18 of Township 9 North and Range 14 West; and portions of Sections 13, 14, and 23 of Township 9 North and Range 15 West.

The action area's topography generally slopes from northwest to southeast from roughly flat in the southern portion of the project with gently rolling hills in the central portion of the project site. Elevations range from approximately 2,400 feet (732 meters) in the southeast corner of the transmission line at the corner of Rosamond Boulevard and 65th Street West to 2,720 feet (830 meters) along Dawn Road, just south of an existing water tank facility.

1.2 Project Description

The project will include the installation of a new energy storage facility and new electrical transmission and/or distribution lines to deliver the generated electricity to the existing power grid. In general, GEM proposes the construction and operation of a 500-megawatt advanced compressed air energy storage (A-CAES) facility deploying Hydrostor proprietary A-CAES technology. The site will be designed to store 500 megawatts for up to 14 hours and deliver up to 4,000 megawatt hours over an 8-hour period when discharging.

2.0 BACKGROUND ON WESTERN JOSHUA TREE (Yucca brevifolia)

Yucca brevifolia, commonly known as the western Joshua tree (WJT), is an iconic plant species indigenous to the southwestern United States, primarily found in the Mojave Desert. This distinctive tree is renowned for its unique appearance, characterized by its tall, spiky leaves that cluster at the ends of long, branching limbs. The name "Joshua tree" is believed to have originated from early Mormon settlers who thought the tree's outstretched branches resembled the biblical figure Joshua reaching out in prayer. WJTs belong to the Agavaceae family and are well-adapted to the arid conditions of their native habitat.

This species exhibits a slow growth rate, with some WJTs taking several decades to reach maturity. Typically, they can attain heights of 15 to 40 feet (4.5 to 12 meters), and their lifespan extends for centuries, making them one of the longest-living yucca species. The WJT has evolved unique survival mechanisms to thrive in the harsh desert environment. Its distinctive leaves have a waxy coating that helps reduce water loss through transpiration, and the tree is equipped with an extensive root system that enables it to access water from deep within the soil. Additionally, the WJT relies on a specialized pollination relationship with the yucca moth. The moth lays its eggs in the tree's flowers, and as the larvae develop, they consume some of the developing seeds, ensuring the WJT's reproductive success.

Climate plays a crucial role in the distribution of WJTs, as these trees are well-suited to the extreme temperatures and low precipitation of the Mojave Desert. They are particularly vulnerable to environmental changes, including climate fluctuations and habitat disturbances. Conservation efforts are underway to protect these iconic trees and their unique ecosystem, as they serve as vital components of the desert landscape and provide habitat for various wildlife species.

3.0 WESTERN JOSHUA TREE CONSERVATION ACT

The Western Joshua Tree Conservation Act (WJTCA), enacted in July 2023, is designed to safeguard the WJT and its habitat in alignment with the state's renewable energy and housing development goals. The legislation establishes a streamlined permitting process for specific development projects, accompanied by mitigation fees. These fees are earmarked for acquiring and preserving WJT habitats, as well as implementing other conservation measures to protect the species. By adopting this efficient approach and collecting mitigation fees, the WJTCA aims to offset the negative impacts of authorized projects on WJTs, contributing to the broader conservation of the species at a landscape scale.

To enforce the conservation efforts, the WJTCA prohibits the importation, export, take, possession, purchase, or sale of any WJT in California without authorization from the California Department of Fish and Wildlife (CDFW). The legislation empowers CDFW to issue permits for incidental take allowing permittees to pay specified fees in lieu of mitigation activities. The act also grants CDFW authority to issue permits for the removal of dead WJTs and the trimming of live ones under specific circumstances.

Additionally, the WJTCA authorizes CDFW to enter agreements with counties or cities to delegate limited authority for permitting tree removal associated with various development projects. All fees collected as alternatives to mitigation activities are directed to the Western Joshua Tree Conservation Fund, exclusively used by CDFW for acquiring, conserving, and managing WJT conservation lands.

The act mandates collaboration between CDFW, governmental agencies, California Native American Tribes, and the public in developing and implementing a comprehensive WJT Conservation Plan. This plan's finalized draft must be presented to the Fish and Game Commission for review and approval by December 31, 2024. CDFW is further obligated to produce annual reports on the WJT's conservation status, submitted to the commission and the State Legislature annually starting from 2025.

In March 2022, CDFW conducted a status review report on the WJT potential listing as endangered or threatened under the California Endangered Species Act. The WJTCA requires an updated status review report by January 1, 2023, unless directed otherwise by the Fish and Game Commission. The commission must then consider the effectiveness of the WJTCA's conservation measures, the updated status review report, and other relevant factors before determining the validity of the petition to list the WJT under the California Endangered Species Act.

4.0 METHODS

4.1 Literature Review and Records Search

A literature review and record search were conducted to identify WJT presence in the project vicinity. The review included:

- Aerial photographs
- Pertinent documents from the WSP library and project files (e.g., other biological surveys from the general vicinity)
- Online sources, such as the iNaturalist website

4.2 Western Joshua Tree Census Surveys

WJT census surveys were completed by WSP USA throughout the calendar year of 2023 in accordance with the Census Instructions as outlined on the CDFW website (CDFW 2024). The entire project footprint was systematically searched using parallel survey transects to ensure thorough coverage of the entire project site, including a 1,000-foot survey buffer, herein described as the "study area."

Each WJT stem or trunk emerging from the ground was treated as an individual tree, regardless of its proximity to other WJT stems or trunks. Each stem or trunk was recorded with a global positioning system unit as a separate tree and assigned a unique identifier. The recording process also included dead trees, with specific criteria used to classify a tree as dead. A tree was considered dead if it met one of the following conditions:

- It had not undergone burning and exhibited no green leaves, no recent growth on the main stem, and no sprouts at the base.

- It had experienced partial or complete burning at least 18 months prior, lacking green leaves, showing no new growth on the main stem, and displaying no sprouts at the base.
- It had fallen and was entirely detached from its roots, or it had fallen, and its roots were no longer in contact with the soil.

To measure each tree, a sturdy tape measure or measuring pole was employed, measuring from the middle of the trunk's base to the top of the furthest leaf from the base. In cases where the main trunk followed an unusual path, two measurements were taken to accurately capture the tree's true growth, with a limit of no more than two measurements per tree. Mature trees, defined as those having produced flowers/fruits in the past, or that had at least one set of branches, were identified as mature WJT. All WJTs were classified into one of three height categories:

- Class 1: Less than 3.3 feet (1 meter) in height
- Class 2: 3.3 feet (1 meter) or greater but less than 16.4 feet (5 meters) in height
- Class 3: 16.4 feet (5 meters) or greater in height

Census data collection noted the presence of flowers and fruits. Flowers, appearing in clusters at the ends of branches, were recorded as such in the data sheet. Only fruits from the current growing season were documented in the census table, excluding old fruits that were dark brown or small/undeveloped. If fruits were developing while flowers were still present, the tree was recorded as having "fruit."

5.0 RESULTS

5.1 Western Joshua Tree Census Surveys

As indicated in the attached WJT Census Data Sheet in Appendix B, a total of 3,196 WJTs were documented in the study area (Figure 4, Joshua Tree Location Map). The most prevalent height class was Class 2, with 1,596 individuals recorded, followed by Class 1, where 1,447 individuals were observed, and Class 3, which recorded 153 individuals. All WJT locations (i.e., lat/long), size class, vitality status, and maturity status are documented in Appendix B. Photographs of all WJTs documented are included in Appendix C.

6.0 DISCUSSION

If impacts are proposed to WJTs, typically an Incidental Take Permit (ITP) will need to be acquired from CDFW, either through an individual ITP or through the WJTCA. Since the proposed project will be permitted through the California Energy Commission (CEC), the CEC will be issuing a final decision, and will incorporate the required mitigation measures as if an ITP was issued. The submission of a WJTCA Incidental Take Permit (WJTCA ITP) application form, along with all necessary attachments outlined in the application, may not be required under the CEC guidelines. During the agency consultation, CDFW staff will assess the application information and reach out to the CEC for any necessary clarifications or site visits. It is noteworthy that WJTCA ITPs do not have statutory deadlines; however, CEC commits to processing their certification as promptly as possible.

Once the finalized project footprint has been determined, the total number of trees and authorized size classes for take are determined, the mitigation fee can be identified. The mitigation fee for each tree size class is specified ($1,000 for each WJT 16.4 feet [5 meters] or greater in height; $200 for each WJT 3.3 feet [1 meter] or greater but less than 16.4 feet [5 meters] in height; and $150 for each WJT less than 3.3 feet [1] meter in height). The total cost estimate for the mitigation of all trees within the project site is estimated to be $688,250 but will likely be reduced depending on the number of trees that can be avoided or transplanted.
