Inflation Reduction Act - Retail energy users are being sidelined in favor of corporations

While there has been a constant streamlining of major projects for utilities and other corporations looking to cash in on the IRA, those of us that find it unaffordable to do basic things like replace appliances have been apparently left at the back of the line. It definitely seems there's an order of priority for the federal and California state governments. You've had enough time. Please roll out the application process for rebates ASAP and get this ball rolling. There are people in need that began years ago. As a homeowner, as a California resident, as an American citizen, and as someone that cares about the well-being of my fellow community members, this is an unacceptable delay.
