The California Energy Commission (CEC) will host a workshop to provide an outlook for 2024 summer reliability. The workshop will include an overview of anticipated summer weather and fire conditions, new clean energy resources expected to come online, hydroelectric resource conditions, and an update on anticipated system reliability conditions.

The public can participate in the workshop consistent with the attendance instructions below. The CEC aims to begin promptly at the start time posted and the end time is an estimate based on the proposed agenda. The workshop may end sooner or later than the posted end time.

Agenda

Staff from the CEC, California Independent System Operators (California ISO), California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC), Department of Water Resources (DWR), California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection (CALFIRE), and Western Electricity Coordinating Council (WECC) will provide information on anticipated summer conditions. This will include an overview of anticipated summer weather and fire condition and a summary of new clean energy resources coming online and hydroelectric resource availability. Additionally, CEC, California ISO and representatives from the largest publicly owned utilities will discuss 2024 summer reliability. The workshop will include a public comment period.

A detailed schedule will be posted prior to the workshop at Docket No. 21-ESR-01 at https://efiling.energy.ca.gov/Lists/DocketLog.aspx?docketnumber=21-ESR-01.

Background

California is experiencing a substantial shift in conditions affecting the electric grid. The state is transitioning to a cleaner energy future to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, while climate change is causing substantial variability in weather patterns and an increase in climate-driven natural disasters. In 2020, a west-wide heat event resulted in rotating outages on August 14 and 15. In 2021, dry conditions resulted in a wildfire in Oregon that impacted transmission lines that California depends on for reliability. In 2022, California experienced record high temperatures between August 31 and September 9, and on September 6, 2022, the California ISO recorded a new record peak load at 52,061 MW, nearly 2,000 MW higher than the previous record. In late July 2023, parts of the West outside California experienced extreme heat, driving challenging and fast-moving market dynamics. This workshop will discuss the anticipated summer conditions, assess summer 2024 reliability, and provide an overview of reliability challenges.
