This ravine is enormous

The ravine in which this facility is proposed is enormous. It is very long. Very difficult for the Fire fighters to defend. Very easy for fire to travel through Open Space brush propelled by wind coming up from the nearby ocean. A Lithium fire that cannot be contained by water anyway and spread over a 13 acre pad would devastate the ravine and most probably cause loss of residential housing on a large scale and loss of life. This facility could contain Lithium Ion batteries, the permit would allow those, and explosions would accompany the fire.

This is just the wrong location.
