Care Facility for adults with disabilities nearby, concern regarding risk

I am the executive director of a non profit that houses 47 adults with disabilities very near the proposed site.

The proposed facility is less than half that distance to homes. It is also not at an existing power plant. There no industry near to this proposed site. Our facility is farther than the nearest residences, but the correct wind could put our residents at significant risk. Exposure to hydrogen fluoride gas can be deadly. The project should be located in a much more remote site.

Besides our facility several additional elderly care facilities are also in San Juan Capistrano. Evacuation of these facilities are very difficult because of the density of residents coupled with the disabilities of all of these residents making it impossible to evacuate in a timely manner.

I am very concerned at the risk this may pose to both our vulnerable population and others close by.

Sincerely,
Aaron Vorell
