The California Energy Commission (CEC) will host a remote-access workshop to solicit comments on proposed data collection and analyses for the 2025 Integrated Energy Policy Report (2025 IEPR) relating to electricity resource plans.

This workshop is part of the 2025 IEPR proceeding. Chair David Hochschild is the CEC's Lead Commissioner for the 2025 IEPR, with Vice Chair Siva Gunda as the Associate Commissioner. The CEC aims to begin promptly at the start time posted, and the end time is an estimate based on the proposed agenda. The workshop may end sooner or later than the posted end time.

The public can participate consistent with the attendance instructions below.

Agenda

CEC staff from the Energy Assessments Division will present proposed changes to its electricity resource plan forms and instructions for data collection in support of the 2025 IEPR and future IEPR reports and updates. Changes include identification of facility location by county and battery energy storage technology subtypes. All changes to the electricity resource plans will be explained during the workshop. The workshop will start with an introduction, followed by a presentation on the electricity resource plan forms and instructions. After the presentation, there will be time for public participation discussion and comments.

A detailed meeting schedule with draft forms and instructions will be posted before the workshop at 2025 IEPR Workshops, Notices, and Documents, <https://www.energy.ca.gov/data-reports/reports/integrated-energy-policy-report/2025-integrated-energy-policy-report/2025-iepr>.

Background

California Public Resources Code Section 25301 requires the CEC to prepare an IEPR every two years that includes assessments and forecasts of energy industry supply, production, transportation, delivery and distribution, demand, and prices. The CEC develops these assessments and forecasts of the state's electricity and pipeline gas markets, including statewide and regional electricity and gas demand. Factors such as future demand growth, changes in economic activity, population growth, urban development, industrial expansion, energy intensity, growth in different building types, and energy and environmental policies are included.

The CEC is directed by California Public Resources Code Section 25301 to regularly assess all aspects of energy demand and supply to develop energy policies that conserve resources, protect the environment, ensure energy reliability, enhance the state's economy and protect public health and safety. These assessments are the foundation for analyses and policy recommendations to the Governor, Legislature, and other agencies. To carry out these assessments, "the commission may require submission of demand forecasts, resource plans, market assessments, and related outlooks from electric, natural gas utilities, transportation, fuel and technology suppliers, and other market participants" (California Public Resources Code, § 25301[a][2]).

Under the CEC's regulations in title 20 of the California Code of Regulations, each load-serving entity (LSE) is required to submit a 10-year demand forecast according to forms and instructions adopted by the CEC (Sections 1345 et seq.). All LSEs are also required to submit 10-year resource plans according to forms and instructions adopted by the CEC (Section 1347). Section 1350 provides an exemption from these filing requirements to small LSEs (those with a peak electricity demand of less than 200 MW in each of the last two calendar years preceding the filing) if those entities have provided the resource adequacy information identified in Section 1346.

This information collected by the proposed forms and instructions will provide a foundation for the analyses and recommendations in the 2025 IEPR and potentially future IEPR updates and reports, including resource assessment and analysis of progress towards energy efficiency and renewable energy goals. The data will also be used to develop CEC forecasts, which are used in the California Public Utilities Commission procurement and resource adequacy proceedings, as well as in transmission planning studies conducted by the California Independent System Operator. This information will also provide the CEC with a better understanding of LSE planning assumptions and supply resource commitments, allowing the CEC to assess current conditions in electric generation reliability. Draft supply forms and instructions will be posted to the docket (25-IEPR-02) a few days before the workshop.
