Grant the suspension request

The public hysteria created in part by the ill-informed, and also by activists who specialize in disseminating false information would be somewhat amusing if it were not so indicative of how easily manipulated otherwise rational people can be. The Quail Brush Plant will be needed, if not in the immediate future, eventually. In spite of the views of some, the location is anything but pristine, and located next to a land fill. Residents should work with the developer to extract tangible benefits for the community in exchange for cooperation. The power plants of today are not the polluting monsters activists pretend them to be, and provide reliable firming power to the grid during the day when renewable sources cannot be dispatched, and at night when renewables are not generating. I would urge the Commission to grant the request of the developer.
