For the People or Forgetting the People?

California Energy Commission,

I am a San Diego native who is shocked to hear about the CEC reconsidering the Quail Brush Generation Project. Not only has this indecent proposal been heard and rejected by San Diegans before, but the Quail Brush plan is outdated and ill-planned.

Not only would a Quail Brush power plant be a detriment to one of San Diego's landmarks, it would be a slap in the face to residents around Mission Trails. Additionally, there are better methods of harnessing and distributing energy that would not make residents uneasy or ill.

I urge you, the CEC, to deny the Quail Brush Project and to prevent it from ever going through. If you do not take our voices seriously, then it will be abundantly clear what we really need is representatives and figureheads who actually represent our voices.

Sincerely,

Barbara McCarthy, a citizen concerned about the CEC's priorities
