In response to California's ongoing drought, Governor Brown's Executive Order B-29-15 directed the first ever statewide mandatory water reductions. The Executive Order further directed the California Energy Commission to implement a statewide water energy technology program as part of its work to address the drought.

Water Energy Technology Program

To accelerate the deployment of innovative water and energy saving technologies and reduce greenhouse gas emissions, the Energy Commission, jointly with the Department of Water Resources and the State Water Resources Control Board, will implement a Water Energy Technology (WET) program to provide funding for innovative technologies for agricultural, industrial, commercial, residential, and renewable desalination that meet the following criteria:

- Display significant water savings, energy savings, and greenhouse gas emission reductions.
- Demonstrate actual operation beyond the research and development stage.
- Document readiness for rapid, large-scale deployment (but not yet widely deployed) in California.

Examples of eligible innovative WET program technologies are available at <http://www.energy.ca.gov/wet/>.

The Energy Commission is interested in obtaining input on the following questions concerning the Water Energy Technology Program:

1. What emerging technologies should be considered that provide direct on-site energy, water, and greenhouse gas savings for each of the identified sectors?
2. What are some of the main barriers preventing implementation of advanced water and energy saving projects?
3. To what extent is broadband or internet availability a factor that prevents implementation of water and energy saving projects, especially on farms and in rural areas?
4. Are there any operational, regulatory, or other constraints that prevent installing projects quickly?
5. What is the capability of obtaining utility data showing pre- and post-energy and water use? If utility data is not available, how will pre- and post-results be documented?

In addition to the WET program, the Energy Commission is focusing on the following drought response efforts:

- In April, the Energy Commission adopted emergency regulations establishing standards that improve the efficiency of water appliances, including toilets, urinals, and faucets available for sale and installation in new and existing buildings in California. For more information, see:

- Beginning in May, the Energy Commission is expediting the processing of all applications or petitions for amendments to power plant certifications for the purpose of securing alternate water supply necessary for continued power plant operation. For more information, see:

- Jointly with the Department of Water Resources and the State Water Resources Control Board, the Energy Commission is developing a time-limited statewide appliance rebate program to provide monetary incentives for the replacement of inefficient household devices. For more information, see:
