AES POWERPLANT IN REDONDO

THE voters on Measure B voted to KEEP the powerplant in its current location. Well how could that be, you ask? The answer is that a YES vote would have called for ELIMINATION of any powerplant in Redondo. However, deceptive politicians led the NO on B which included the possibility of a NEW powerplant in Redondo. Some say those that voted NO were understanding that the NO in question meant NO powerplant. True to the misleading leaders of the NO on B measure failed to clarify what the NO vote actually meant, hence we still now face the possibility of a powerplant in Redondo. Personally, as a 33 year resident of Redondo that lives within one mile of the current AES plant, my wish would be for the "old plant " be removed, however my wishes must "step aside " in lieu of the decision by the California Energy Commissions findings. "so be it" I say...but lets move ahead. I am 79 years old and may very well OUTLIVE this old plant. So if a new plant is to be built...hey I may outlive that one also (this issue needs a bit of humour). I am confident that the decision the Commission makes is a based on intensive, and detailed search for what is NEEDED not WISHED for the present and the future. Thankyou for the opportunity to express my thoughts on the issue. Gennaro Pupa
