Background

As required by Senate Bill 1389 (Bowen, Chapter 568, Statutes of 2002), the Energy Commission conducts "assessments and forecasts of all aspects of energy industry supply, production, transportation, delivery and distribution, demand and prices" (Public Resources Code, Section 25302(a)). The Energy Commission uses these assessments and forecasts to provide an analytical foundation for developing energy policies that conserve resources, protect the environment, ensure energy reliability, enhance the state's economy, and protect public health and safety. Developing energy policy recommendations on the most current and pressing energy issues facing the state, and across different markets and systems, requires an evaluation of potential trade-offs that explicitly address inter-fuel and inter-market effects (Public Resources Code, Section 25302(b)).

On February 26, March 19, June 24, and September 30, 2015, the Energy Commission held workshops to present key assumptions and inputs, including fuel price forecasts and vehicle attributes, which are used in preparing the revised transportation energy demand forecasts.

Agenda

At the November 24, 2015 workshop, staff will present, discuss, and solicit public comments on the revised transportation energy demand forecasts for petroleum-based and alternative fuels and technologies used in the transportation sector. Topics will include the revised forecasts of California's future vehicle fleet and the revised forecasts of transportation energy demand, including petroleum, alternative, and renewable fuels.
