The state of California is consistently at the forefront of policies to protect and improve our environment. Poor air quality creates high societal costs, including billions in healthcare costs and missed work and school days. Too frequently it is the most vulnerable who are at risk. We are grateful for the work So Cal Gas has done to promote use of renewable fuels like natural gas for the trucking industry. Natural gas is a cleaner energy source and it is important to ensure an adequate supply. Air quality effects the whole community, and ensuring it is clean is important to the health of us all.
