Background

On April 21, 2017, the Energy Commission released an invitation to participate to provide interested parties an opportunity to inform the Commission about the product, market, and industry characteristics of a number of appliances, including commercial and industrial fans and blowers. The Commission reviewed the information and data received in the docket, and hosted a staff workshop on July 19, 2017, to publicly vet this information.

On July 18, 2017, the Energy Commission released an invitation to submit proposals for standards, test procedures, labeling requirements, and other measures to improve the efficiency and reduce the energy consumption of appliances, including commercial and industrial fans and blowers. The Commission reviewed the proposals received in the docket and hosted a staff webinar on October 24, 2017.

On January 19, 2018, the Energy Commission formally issued an order instituting rulemaking proceedings on commercial and industrial fans and blowers. The order directs staff to consider efficiency standards, test procedures, marking and labeling requirements, and other regulations for these appliances.

In May 2018, the Energy Commission published a draft staff report containing an analysis of efficiency standards for commercial and industrial fans and blowers. Commission staff proposes to test and require minimum efficiency standards for commercial and industrial fans and blowers, both stand-alone and embedded in other equipment, and to require marking and certification of these appliances.
