California needs to be 100% free from fossil fuel

California needs to be free from fossil fuel, 100% free from fossil fuel. Homes and buildings generate a lot of emissions due to the consumption of natural gas. Burning natural gas also pollutes the environment, and fracking the ground for the extraction of this type of energy contributes to climate change. If all buildings were to use electricity instead of natural gas for powering the appliances, then California would be a green state and with the use of 100% renewable energy, California would also be an example on tackling climate change.
