Agenda

This workshop will focus on plans for updating the California Energy Demand 2019-2020 Forecast, which was adopted by the Commission in January 2020.

Session 1 will review the methodology and inputs used to develop the forecast. Staff will discuss key economic indicators that have been affected by the COVID-19 crisis, such as employment, gross state product, and manufacturing output. Staff will also discuss plans for updating electricity rate projections and self-generation forecasts. Partial and preliminary results may also be presented.

Session 2 will focus on electric vehicle adoption and charging load. Specifically, staff will discuss plans for updating the light-, medium-, and heavy-duty vehicle forecasts. Staff will also review several exploratory scenarios around vehicle charging and associated load impacts.

Presenters for the sessions will include CEC staff members.

A detailed meeting schedule will be posted prior to the workshop at the 2020 IEPR Update Workshops, Notices, and Documents page, https://www.energy.ca.gov/data-reports/reports/integrated-energy-policy-report/2020-integrated-energy-policy-report-update-0.

Background

The CEC adopts 10-year forecasts for annual, hourly, and peak electricity demand every two years as part of the IEPR process. These forecasts are used in resource and system planning assessments, including the Resource Adequacy, Integrated Resource Planning, and Distribution Resources Plan processes conducted by the California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC), as well as the Transmission Planning Process conducted by the California Independent System Operator (California ISO).

The CEC, CPUC, and California ISO are committed to working collaboratively across these planning efforts, in part by agreeing to use a single set of demand forecasts. To accommodate the annual nature of these assessments, the CEC provides an update to its most recently adopted set of forecasts. The forecast update is limited in scope, retaining most of the characteristics of the adopted forecast. The update will reflect newly available load data, as well as embedded projections for key load modifiers such as generation from behind-the-meter photovoltaics and load from electric vehicle charging.

Importantly, the forecast update also contains more recently available economic assessments, which incorporate projected impacts associated with the COVID-19 crisis.
