A right to Propane

I am a resident in a rural area and my family of 6 depends on propane for heat in the winter and cooking during the year. Taking away the right to use propane would take away our ability to cook during electricity blackouts and makes us more dependent on the grid. Citizens should have the right to choose how they want to heat their homes and what to use to cook with. A way to encourage more grid use should not be by lowering prices.

Thanks for your consideration,
Monterey homeowner
