It's time for all-electric

The technical path to decarbonization is simply this: we must electrify (nearly) everything. We need a near 100% adoption rate of decarbonized solutions, and buildings are a tremendously important piece of the puzzle. The decisions you make in this code cycle will determine the climate footprint of buildings constructed up to six years from now, a footprint that will stretch decades into the future.

I urge you to be bold and request that you leverage your decision making position to adopt an all-electric building code.

Thank you,
Freya Chay
